

PLANTATION POLICE, OR HOME GUARD, EXAMINING PASSES ON THE ROAD LEADING TO THE LEVEE OF THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.—FROM A SKETCH BY F. B. SCHELL.

The colored people were used, whenever possible, by the Union authorities to furnish information from across the lines, hence great vigilance was exercised by the Confederates to prevent slaves not loyal to the South from passing to the Union camps.